M'ADOO AND
SMITH SPLIT
ON WET ISSUE

Question of State Rights Involved in Controversy by Democrats

MAY MEAN OPEN WAR
Former Treasurer Would Ask Federal Aid for New York EnforcementBY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright 1928 by Post Pub. Co.

Washington—The speech that so many people expected William Gibbs McAdoo to make at the Jackson Day dinner challenging the views of Governor Smith on prohibition has at last been made at Richmond.

Mr. McAdoo is represented as having felt that the Jackson Day party was a friendly political gathering in which the proprieties called for harmony. As for individual expression on party issues, the former secretary of the treasury, having stepped aside so far as presidential candidate is concerned, feels he has a right to state the viewpoint of the drys in the Democratic party about the importance of preventing any "wet" from being elected to the presidency.

SAYS COOLIDGE FAILED

Although Mr. McAdoo does not discuss Republican candidates, it is known that he feels President Coolidge has failed on law enforcement and that when Governor Smith signed the repeal of the enforcement act in the state of New York a more vigorous policy on the part of the White House should have been pursued. He thinks that when New York state in effect subtracted several thousand police officers from enforcement duty, the president might have asked for a special appropriation from congress to help enforce the law in New York state by increasing the number of federal agents.

Mr. McAdoo insists that Gov. Smith is under a misapprehension in stating that the Volstead law is as much a part of New York state law as if there were a special state enforcement act. The former secretary declares that theoretically a local police officer has a sacred duty to turn over to federal officials any violators of the federal statutes but that in actual practice it does not work out that way and that when the New York state enforcement act was repealed the state courts lost jurisdiction over liquor offenses.

MAY ASK FEDERAL AID

Mr. McAdoo argues for financial aid from the federal government for states like New York and Maryland where local enforcement statutes have been repealed or never passed. His theory is that the federal government furnishes aid to states in road building and can do so in any other federal activity.

While the McAdoo speech is a challenge to Gov. Smith it also represents the true feeling of the drys about Republican policies of law enforcement and it would not be surprising to see a movement started to pledge Republican candidate to recommend, if elected, the appropriation by congress of funds to take care of law enforcement in those states where the task is being sidetracked.

August Kaestle Fatally Injured When Car Skids as Driver Tries to Stop

August Kaestle, 82, 316 S. Court-st., died at St. Elizabeth hospital early Thursday afternoon from injuries received when he was struck by an automobile driven by Fred Harriman, 704 N. Elliston, on E. College-ave. about 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

The aged man, a resident of Appleton for the past 62 years, was crossing the street from the north to the south side in front of Armory G.

Harriman was driving west on College-ave and as Kaestle saw him approaching he stopped and attempted to turn back.

Harriman tried to drive past Kaestle on the south side but the aged man moved directly in the path of the machine. Harriman slammed on the brakes and the car stopped but the rear end skidded around and the side of the car struck Kaestle and knocked him to the pavement. His skull was fractured and he was badly cut about the head.

About 4:45, W. Prospect-st. and Mr. Harriman took Kaestle to St. Elizabeth hospital in Suther's machine. The injured man died about 6 o'clock.

REBELS LOSE CLASH
WITH FEDERAL TROOPS

Mexico City—(AP)—Dispatches from Guadalajara Friday said that General Anselmo Garcia, under chief of the presidential guards, announced that a catholic priest, Crescencio Esparza, 45 rebels, were killed as a result of a clash with federal soldiers on the hills near Cojula, state of Jalisco.

The body will be taken from Schomberg's Funeral home to the residence of the New York governor, if nominated, would gladly stand on the platform. In opposition to this is the view of his opponents who think that his record will count far more on the prohibition issue than his acceptance of the party platform.

The significance of the McAdoo speech is that there is less harmony in the party than the Jackson Day dinner itself indicated.

COMMITTEE PASSES ON
BOULDER DAM PROJECT

Washington—(AP)—The swing Johnsson Boulder Canyon bill was approved Friday by the house irrigation committee with the proviso that it not be placed on the house calendar until March 15. The proviso was attached for the purpose of granting further time to the seven Colorado river basin states in which to negotiate a compact.

The measure virtually was unchanged by the committee. Chief among the few amendments accepted was that of Representative White, Democrat, Colorado, which attempted to clear away any doubt as to the navigability of the stream by adding to the purpose of the bill the improvement of navigation.

BEAUTY DOCTOR VICTIM

Chicago—(AP)—A blood transfusion performed in last minute attempt to save the life of Miss Sadie Holland whose legs were amputated when gangrene set in following a "beauty operation" had resulted in a slight improvement in her condition Friday.

HARD TO DETERMINE WHERE TO START TO FILL CITY'S NEEDS

Three Speakers Tell Church Folks What City Needs Materially and Spiritually

Supervised playgrounds, a subway for Wisconsin-ave, new bridges for S. Oneida, E. Pacific and W. Lawrence-sts, a new senior high school, an entire revamping of the sewage system, a city hall or a public library building, an airport, a tool house are among the projects before the city. Mayor Albert C. Rule said at the church night supper Thursday evening at First Congregational church.

The real problem before the city is to determine what Appleton needs the most, just what is the cake and what is the bread and butter, Mayor Rule declared. Each organization has its own idea of civic improvements for Appleton, making it most difficult for the administration to determine which is most necessary for public good.

The Mayor suggested that clubs and organizations meet with the city council when the budget is made out.

A new senior high school, gymnasiums and equipment and guidance program are the educational needs of Appleton, Ben J. Rohan, superintendent of schools, pointed out.

The adjustment of old buildings to meet modern needs is one of the most difficult problems of education at the present. The equality of educational opportunity brings out new problems. Provision must be made for individual differences, for people vary. Motor, aesthetic, socially and verbally minded persons must all be handled differently.

Physical problems also are a part of the educational needs of Appleton, Mr. Rohan said. Wisconsin requires that every child shall have 30 minutes of physical education each day. The gymnasium at the high school is too small for the required physical education program, and athletic contests have to be held in the Armory.

Guidance is one of the most important phases of the educational program in the minds of educators and the public at present, Mr. Rohan said. The aim of the program is to teach boys and girls to learn to work, to determine the activity in which they best fit, to give them a vision — the thing that makes people love their work.

Appleton needs more applied religion in its everyday life in such phases as friendliness, charity to one another, tolerance, cheerfulness, helpfulness, and encouragement, F. B. Younger said in outlining the religious needs of Appleton. Sunday night moving pictures, vesper services and mens clubs are among the items of community cooperation for more applied Christianity, he said.

SET NEW RECORD FOR CATTLE SALES IN 1927

Madison. — (AP) — Wisconsin sales of dairy cattle to other states and to foreign countries reached a new high point in 1927, when more than $3,000,000 head were shipped, according to the state's veterinarian's office.

Forty-seven states and eight countries comprise the outside buyers.

The number of cattle slaughtered as a result of the tuberculosis test was decidedly smaller in 1927 than in the previous year. The total number killed from reactors in 1927 was 34,127 while for 1926 it was 61,681.

15 MILLION DOLLAR FIRE AT FALL RIVER

other early victim as was the Rialto theatre, where an audience was viewing a picture when the first alarm came. Other theatres destroyed were the Premier and the Majestic.

Members of the 241 coast artillery company were called out to supplement a force of 20 state policemen rushed from the Holden barracks. In addition, every member of the local force was on duty but there was no looting and an almost total absence of disorder.

NO FIREMEN KILLED

Describes reports that several firemen had been killed by falling walls, a check showed only five had been injured. None was believed seriously hurt.

Throughout the height of the blaze, the city was cut off from the outside world. Telephone service failed at 11 o'clock.

Both the Western Union and Postal telegraph offices were burned. At the former, the operators worked feverishly to send out news of the fire until their own building was in flames. The record in the log of the office said the men "stuck until their shoes were burned."

Lack of water pressure was a constant handicap to firemen who also suffered from the cold wind which whipped the flames before it.

The plant of L'Independent, French language newspaper, was destroyed. The Herald-News, which had just moved into a new building, was a heavy loser. The basement of the Fall River Globe was flooded by water.

REMOVE BANK FUNDS

The old Herald-News building was one of the burned structures.

The last big building to go was the eight story Massasoit-Pocasset national bank. Hastily summoned employees succeeded in removing cash, securities and records and similar precautions were taken by several other banks when it appeared they might be in danger.

The blaze was first discovered in the large six-story mill No. 1. The building proved a veritable tinder box and within a half an hour all four units of the plant were on fire and shortly thereafter the flames leaped across to the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad bus terminal. There, an unverified report said, a tank containing 5,000 gallons of gasoline exploded.

TWO CARS OF PULPWOOD SPILLED INTO RIVER

A dragging chain which caught in a switch near the filtration plant is blamed for the derailing of ten cars of pulpwood on the Ashland division of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad. Two of the cars toppled into the river, a third over onto the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific right of way. The accident occurred about 9:45 Thursday evening. Wrecking equipment was called immediately and the line was reported cleared at 11 o'clock Friday morning. No one was injured by the derailment.

Nationalists have just opened a wireless station at Shanghai, China.

OVERWEIGHT

Overweight is dangerous—not only in itself, but as a condition indicating certain organic diseases. That's why insurance companies bar people of marked overweight. If you want to keep your weight at a safe figure, watch your diet, and above all, your liver!

A sluggish liver lets the system fill with toxins formed in food waste, and this toxic condition is a common cause of overweight. The liver needs a little help occasionally, especially after the age of 35, and there's nothing better for this, as doctors agree, than a little ox gall. Ox gall is a splendid natural stimulant for the liver, promoting its normal functioning, so essential to real health.

Dioxol tablets are genuine ox gall in dainty and tasteless form, each tablet representing 10 drops of pure ox gall. They cost less than 2¢ each at good drugstores, and a few prove a revelation. To be sure of getting the genuine ox gall, ask for Dioxol.

Freight down bound totaled 59,149 tons valued at $763,62.

Freight hauls from Green Bay to other points on the river are as follows: From Green Bay to Kaukauna 24,293 tons valued at $171,345; Combined Locks 23,747 tons valued at $118,735; Kimberly 69,459 tons valued at $347,295; Appleton 87,736 tons valued at $448,680; Menasha 2795 tons valued at $13,975; Stockbridge 1,250 tons valued at $7,940; Oshkosh, 26,652 tons valued at $183,369.

Shipments from Oshkosh were comparatively less and the tonnages lower. The largest shipments were to Menasha 6,332 tons valued at $5,382 and to Fremont, 9,574 tons valued at $11,176. Total tonnage from Oshkosh was 19,260 tons valued at $31,370 as compared with 244,932 tons from Green Bay valued at $1,276,839. All shipments were 342,139 tons valued at $1,449,594. In 1926 they were 235,829 tons valued at $1,546,553.

A comparison of shipments from Green Bay to Appleton shows that in 1927 there was shipped 85,736 tons valued at $423,680 as against 32,612 tons valued at $468,060 the year previous. The Oshkosh to Appleton tonnage also fell off a few tons. Lockages at number four lock, Appleton, were 52 less in 1927 than in 1926 showing there was less traffic on the river generally. Lockages for the entire Fox River showed a comparative decrease 22,656 in 1926 as against 21,732 in 1927.

Foot Tapping Passe As Youngsters Learn To Play

Toot, toot, go the horns every Tuesday and Thursday.

One, two, three, four, sing the members of the class in brass and wood wind instruments at Wilson junior high school during the last period of the school day. Counting is done to develop the oral counters and to establish the rhythm in the student's mind to avoid keeping time with the familiar stamp, stamp of one foot or the other.

As they count their exercises or two-on them, to effectively set the rhythm as a habit-forming process, they go through the correct finger, breathing, and the like. Then they are ready for work.

"Get way down in the cellar, there," is the advice dished out to the basses when a tone is not low enough. "When you hear someone sing you do not hear them stamp off like this." And the supervisor hums a tune, ending with the designed stamp. "What's the trouble?"

"My base just slipped," said one. And there followed cornet quartets, clarinet quartets, songs in unison, part songs and even solos — for Mary is a crack clarinetist.

Two girls who play cornet are in the seventh grade. This means that they will have two more years instruction in the junior high school plus the three years work in high school. One little fellow who comes over from St. Mary school is in the sixth grade and plays the cornet real well. By the time these students are out of high school they will have had from five to seven years work, which will enable them to play professional music at the end of that time.

And the ability of these students to do sight reading is most astonishing.

IBANEZ GOES

Vicente Ibanez who flung himself across the sky of fame with his book, "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," and incidentally created a popular moniker for Notre Dame's famous backfield, is dead. Not only with the book mentioned but with other entrancing stories did he establish an enduring reputation as a master of language. When he wrote his books with affection for his various characters uppermost in his mind he wrote entertainingly and convincingly, but when he left the field of fiction for the field of politics he wrote with bitterness and destruction.

Ibanez loved liberty, a liberty he could not secure in his Spanish home. He left Spain because he could not write as he did about Spanish conditions and keep out of prison. He raised his voice manfully in a protest against the harsh order of things in the land of his birth. It is no doubt true that his picture of Spanish conditions was in many material respects accurate but his bitterness was so acute, his denunciations so vicious, his whole manner of approaching and handling the problem so intense that his articles immediately lost him the sympathy and support to which he was entitled. One had the feeling that while his motives were pure and honorable that when he approached a consideration of the questions affecting his own government, he became so vindictive, so intemperate as to become rabid. Instead of reasoning he denounced. Instead of argument he poured pure vitriol into the fray. His ability in using language to paint or portray a situation which would ordinarily be expected to arise to its apex when the liberty of a people was involved seemed, instead to paralyze with his loss of temper in the manifestation of the statement that "whom the gods destroy they first make mad."

His whole history in this respect is a lesson in the use and abuse of language.

With his standing in the world of letters, his ability with the written word and his lofty motives, he might have been a great help to the Spanish people. Certainly those protesting against the dictatorship were in need of a leader, but fiery leaders do not attract but rather repel support. It would be difficult for the average person to read the glowing use to which Ibanez could put language in his stories and believe that his political articles were written by the same person.

His principal political contribution was entitled "Alfonso XIII Unmasked." In it he made accusations against the Spanish king and de Rivera, the dictator, so enormous and quite impossible that he not only failed to gain ground in his effort to establish a Spanish republic but, if anything, aided those against whom he wrote.

None of the intoxicating beauty which filled his works of fiction was to be found in his political adventures. His political writings not only brought him imprisonment, poverty but also exile; and this punishment to which he was subjected was just as useless as his writings for when men are given extreme punishments for political opinions the punishment only creates a halo of glory around them. Some idea of the nature of the government of Spain and of the attitude of Ibanez towards it may be gained from the direction in his will to bury his body in foreign soil. He wrote: "If I were to go home alive I should be arrested and persecuted, and if taken there dead I should receive honors which I do not deserve."

A QUIET CITY

Finally Santiago, Chile, is going to be a very pleasant place henceforth. It has always been beautiful; now it is going to be quiet. There is a drastic law about that. The city government soft-pedals every kind of racket. There must be no superfluous whistling of factories or locomotives. Merry-go-rounds, if they continue to go around, will revolve silently. Automobiles must not use cut-outs or blow their horns unnecessarily. Trucks and street cars must not rattle. Pushcart peddlers must not shout their wares. It may even be that schoolboys must not yell. There is to be no singing or piano-playing after 11 p. m. Victrolas and radios are being subdued.

All this will seem, to many a nervous North American, too good to be true. Let Santiago make good on it, and she will soon be a mighty popular Yankee summer resort—it's summer down there now. But why spread the reform? The whole New world needs quietness. May be the Pan-American conference at Havana could do something about it.

SENATOR WALSH IS SMART

In the earlier days of our country, there was no man who could win the admiration and good-will of his fellow citizens like the man who was "smart" in the frontier vernacular—the man who shrewdly kept his wits about him and never, by whatever smooth-tongued talker, could be hoodwinked.

That sentiment is not quite so strong now. If it were, we believe that one of the most admired men in the country would be the well known senator from Montana, Thomas J. Walsh.

Ever since he began investigating the Teapot Dome business four years ago, Senator Walsh has displayed this quality strongly. But he never showed it so much as he did the other day in connection with his desire to question Col. Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the Standard Oil of Indiana.

Colonel Stewart was in Havana, and his counsel appeared for him. When Senator Walsh remarked that he would like to have Stewart appear at once, the lawyer expressed his regrets, but said that the colonel was very, very busy in Havana on matters of great import—"matters which I would prefer not to divulge."

Another man than Walsh might have sighed "too bad" and bowed to fate. But not Walsh. Instead he picked up a sheaf of Havana newspapers and glanced through them. He read aloud various articles in the society columns—articles which told how the chairman of the Standard Oil of Indiana was gracing countless Havana social functions with his presence, attending dinners at the yacht and jockey clubs, going to this fiesta and that, behaving, in short, exactly like a man who is thoroughly enjoying a vacation.

Senator Walsh read these articles. Then he sat and looked at the lawyer for a moment. Then he said:

"I think that without further discussion you would better cable Colonel Stewart that the Senate committee on public lands expects his prompt attendance before it. Is that understood?"

The lawyer agreed that it was. And that was that.

A very, very sharp chap, this Montana senator. What a name he would have had in the old days, when caginess was properly admired!

SCHOOL MEDICAL SUPERVISION

It has been found that, as a result of continuous medical supervision, of school children, the number that do not finish their work in the specified time has been reduced from 9 per cent to 23 per cent in the last ten years, according to statistics in one of the middle Atlantic states. Losing less time from sickness has made it possible for many children to complete their work without interruption. says "Hygeia."

This medical supervision serves a double purpose. First, and most important, is the correction of unfavorable conditions that might be serious handicaps to the children's development. For this alone the expenditure of the money necessary to maintain this supervision is entirely justified.

But there is also an almost equally important advantage, the advantage to the tax payer, in that it costs the state so much less to educate a child who finishes his work without having to repeat it. The economic advantage to society in the earlier release of the child's energy to be utilized in a productive field is also worthy of consideration.

Everything considered, school medical supervision has amply proven its worth, and such school systems as have not already adopted the plan would do well to do so. Money invested in health, especially in the health of children, should yield greater profits to society than money invested in any other way.

And the profits are of deeper significance. Monetary profits are not unworthy of consideration, but profits in happiness and joy, and such should be the profits of school medical supervision of children, are the highest possible profits that could accrue to the investment of money, private or public.

ALL THE SPECTACULAR STUFF

A. J. Van Brunt, director of safety education, of the Public Service corporation of New Jersey, is doing much to teach the New Jersey public the simple art of resuscitation, but evidently can't teach the doctors of New Jersey anything about this. They apparently go right on doing the same old spectacular stunts—and incidentally getting the same old laudation in the local papers. Among other means Mr. Van Brunt has employed to get this simple but vital knowledge to the resistant public are placards giving the directions for and showing pictures of the Schaefer prone pressure method of resuscitation or artificial respiration, and moving picture films. But still the New Jersey doctors have not heard about this method. Machine salesmen don't tell 'em about it.

A reader sends me an item from a New Jersey paper, telling of the death of a woman from asphyxiation. The woman was found unconscious in her kitchen, with a gas cock open on the kitchen range. Her husband thought he could feel her pulse or heart beating. An ambulance was summoned from a considerable distance, I take it. The woman was "rushed" off to the hospital. A doctor "made a record run to the hospital in eight minutes."

There's the comedy of this tragedy. The doctor was so competent—he fast traveled that he arrived at the hospital even ahead of the ambulance. By George if there was any chance to save the woman these New Jersey actors meant to play their parts in a way that would put Chaplin to shame.

The next scene of the comedy shows the fire department doing its stuff. "The fire department lung motor was put into service." Heaven help the victim now, if she was not quite dead.

Maybe they grabbed the fire extinguisher and tore through the village with it. What dif would that make anyhow?

Mr. Van Brunt's widely circulated direction to employees of the public service corporation that they should not permit the use of any mechanical apparatus in resuscitation, never touched the wide awake medical profession of the backwoods of New Jersey. If he hopes to bolt the doctors out of their long sleep or instill into the village fire brigade a due regard for human life, he will have to put on the road a squad of traveling salesmen who can sell 'em. That's how the mechanical breathing machine people move the goods. Town and village authorities usually feel competent to decide on little problems like this without consulting medical authorities. Thus many a blooming burg has a "wonderful" breathing machine and stages many a spectacular show with it, though never saves a life that could not have been saved more certainly with the simple Schaefer manual prone pressure method that Mr. Van Brunt has so earnestly endeavored to teach the resistant public.

Had this woman's husband received the instruction that every school boy should receive in a properly conducted primary or elementary school he might have saved his wife's life when he found her. The final sad, and to my mind shameful note in this sorry tragedy, tells how the doctor, the fire chief and a fireman worked 1½ hours over the victim.

In short, they seem to have all the spectacular stuff—but no brains.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Goldfish as Companions

Can you tell me if goldfish kept in a sick room are injurious to the patient's health? I have heard they give off some kind of germs. (F. J. S.)

Answer—They are not injurious to anybody's health. They give off no germs.

Worms

Our child aged 7 years is troubled a lot with worms. We have tried—and—also quinine enemas, but without success. We have a dog that the child dearly loves. I have heard that dogs throw off worms and children may get the germs from the dog. (Mrs. M. L.)

Answer—Dogs and cats, and probably other domestic animals, not to mention rats and pigs, may infest children or adults with worms. The animal gets the worm eggs in food; the animal's saliva often contains the microscopic eggs, and anyone petting the animal, or especially anyone the animal may lick or otherwise contaminate with its saliva is likely to be infested. This does not imply that children should not be permitted to have and love dogs, cats or other pets. It implies that they must be taught to exercise cleanliness, for instance, carefully washing the hands after contact with the pet, before the hands stray to the mouth. It is really a refined cruelty to ploy your children with alleged worm remedies. Aside from the fact that most such nostrums are useless for the purpose, some of them are really dangerous. The children deserve the benefit of proper medical treatment.

SHOW WINDOW

Elmer Davis has obtained quite an audience the past few years with his "salty and vigorous essays," as his publisher describes them. They have appeared in many magazines, and when you see his name attached to an article you can be pretty sure that it is more or less unorthodox. That is, frequently unorthodox from the point of view of the people who even recently were regarded as unorthodox. He often sails into H. L. Mencken or Sinclair Lewis or anyone else to that tribe, not with the weapons of a village parson or a good Republican but with the blade of one who is so unorthodox that he refuses to subscribe to the doctrine that any group is sacrosanct. He paints Mencken and Lewis as being in many ways just as foolish as the people those worthies are always.

This position between two extremes gives the book such unity as it has. The two points of view are balanced and contrasted again and again and both of them are lustily attacked, not quite with the vigor of Mencken but with greater scholarship. Elmer Davis is always giving evidence of the fact that for him literature did not begin with the twentieth century. He is at home in the classics as well as in the contemporary writers.

Although he bewails the fact that he is not a member of a gang, the very statement of this seems to show that he is at least gang-conscious. It would not surprise me if the next development in American letters should be the coming into being of a new gang with some like Elmer Davis as its prophet. Many things seem to point to this. The new gang will attack both of the extreme wings. That will be their new gospel. Elmer Davis seems to be making a bid for the leadership of this new cult and he is as likely a candidate for the place as anyone on the literary horizon at present.

The publication of "Show Window" is probably the first gun in the big push that is coming.

Q. Please give me some information about the World Peace Foundation. H. C. L.

A. The World Peace Foundation, known until 1921 as the International School of Peace, was founded by Edwin Ginn, of Boston, Mass., in 1909. Its object is to bring about by education through the college, the press, the pulpit, and the platform, the peace and better order of the world. The management is vested in a board of trustees, a board of directors (corresponding to the faculty of a college), and an advisory council, the individual members of which are of high national and international reputation.

Q. When was beet sugar first used? A. C. R.

A. In the year 1747 a German scientist discovered the sugar properties of the beet, but it was not until about 1810 that the production of sugar from the beet was seriously considered in a commercial way. In 1850 the beet sugar industry was introduced into the United States.

Speaking of beet drivers, there is another Sam—one colored—who still drives to Broadway after midnight. He is known to every member of the theatrical profession, particularly the old-timers, and bring them a flavor of other times in a world cluttered with taxis and noise. Al Jolson is the particular favorite of this particular Sam and few weeks pass without at least one hack ride from the theater home.

Sam invariably gives Jolson the first chance, camping almost nightly at the stage door. If Jolson does not care to ride, Sam goes elsewhere in search of customers. Meanwhile he picks up a few dollars from tourists who like to see the Gay White Way in old-fashioned style.

GIVE COURTS POWER, ADVICE OF LAWYERS ON CRIMINAL WAVE

Clean Up Corruption and Bring Sense of Duty to Jury, Bar Men Ask

New Orleans — Crime in America has reached a point where it is a sinister menace and a challenge to American civilization and the nation must take prompt, drastic action.

This is the viewpoint of some of America's most brilliant lawyers, in New Orleans recently for the mid-winter meeting of the executive committee of the American Bar Association. A symposium of their views was obtained for the Post-Crescent.

To remedy the situation, the lawyers agreed that these steps are necessary:

1—A great sense of responsibility must be awakened in the heart of the average citizen.

2—Corruption in large cities must be cleaned up so that courts can operate without being subjected to outside pressure of any kind.

3—The powers of trial judges must be enlarged so that they can comment on the facts, the evidence and the probable guilt or innocence of defendants, instead of being limited, as at present, to commenting on the law alone.

The question, "Do you think crime in America is increasing, and what do you think should be done about it?" was asked of a number of the most prominent lawyers at the meeting. Here are some answers:

Silas H. Straw of Chicago, president of the American Bar Association:

"Crime is increasing. And the remedy for it is a development of individual responsibility among citizens. But the trouble with Americans seems to be that they have become so pros perous that their only thought today is their own wishes, regardless of the law.

"Americans dodge jury service whenever they can. And when they get on a jury they seem to be smitten with a mushy sentimentality instead of a clean-cut desire to see the law enforced.

"We don't want any more laws to clean up crime. We've got too damned many laws already."

"One change in legal procedure that is absolutely necessary is for the state judges to have more power to comment on the guilt or innocence of the accused. The jury, in turn, should confine its attention to the facts and let interpretation of the law remain the judge's job.

"Develop a sense of individual responsibility in the average citizen and you'll find your crime wave lessening by 90 per cent."

R. E. L. Sauer of Dallas, ex-president of the American Bar Association:

"Crime is on the increase, and convictions are lessening proportionately. I think the chief remedy is to give to state judges the powers that the federal judges have today; the power to comment on the evidence and on the apparent guilt or innocence of the accused, the power to instruct the jury in more than the technical interpretation of the law.

"The present system in many states makes the judge merely a referee between two agile mental acrobats, the lawyer for the defense and the prosecuting attorney. It is a bad system.

"On top of that I'm beginning to believe that the moral vis on of America is getting badly blurred. It is time we Americans wake up to the seriousness of the situation. One of the most amazing episodes in the history of criminal trials is the action of

Begins to Stop Colds in 17 Seconds

This New Liquid Way is Guaranteed

The time to stop a cold is at the start—all doctors agree—and that is Liquocold's great feature.

Within 17 seconds after taking the first teaspoonful this liquid remedy's action begins in the blood—so chemists tell us. In 3 minutes you feel better—you can prove that for yourself.

No waiting (with Liquocold) for a hard tablet to dissolve, which sometimes requires hours and gives the cold microbes more chance to multiply by millions in your nose and throat.

Liquocold "beats them to it," and therefore is the quickest way we know to end a cold if you take it when you first suspect a cold.

No "after effects" from Liquocold because it is non-depressant—a balanced formula, used successfully for years (just as it is now) as a prescription by a well-known doctor. No laxative is needed with it. You simply take it as directed and it does all the rest.

Liquocold is guaranteed to do just what we say. If it doesn't, if not satisfactory for any reason, return the empty bottle to the druggist and get your money back.

BEAUTY HINTS

Be Short In Dainty Underthings And Long In Lacy Negligees And You'll Follow Dame Fashion

BY JULIA BLANSHARD

Molded brevity is the keynote to style in Mandy's spring lingerie. Elaborate review at the United Women's Wear League of America's New York convention showed that while costumes may or may not be longer, the little dainties called lingerie certainly could be no shorter.

Negligees are the exception that proves the brevity rule. If your negligee does not trail in the back and have sleeves that flare or ripple or do something unusual, you are not really in style. Either choose pajamas or go in seriously for ultra feminine boudoir attire.

THE LEG THAT THES

As a matter of fact pajamas come shorter this season, the leg that tics at high-shoe length proving a new favorite.

Next noticeable to the length of lingerie comes the changing silhouette. Lacy trifles use godets, inserts of cobweb lace, pleated chiffon or ruffles of net to gain a flaring line quite the antithesis of last year's boyish straightness. Natural waist lines are indicated everywhere.

The princess combination is the supreme of this tendency and by its curved lines establishes as the ultimate of chic for underthings the same molded silhouette that outer garments emphasize. Night-gowns, slips and combinations use the uneven hem-line, too.

LACINESS FOR FEMINITY

Elaborate laciness is perhaps the third characteristic that hits the feminine eye. Delicate georgette, triple voiles, figured chiffons, nets and quantities of lace—Alencon, Brette, Chantilly and Duchesse—soft their way to stunning styles. Bridal sets use lace almost entirely—with white satin or georgette and to add to the lace effect they even employ bits of mohair or ostrich for ornament. All lingerie makes profuse use of ribbons this spring.

Color lends its artistic charm everywhere. Running true to feminine styles, lingerie uses a soft, complementing flesh pink, when in doubt. But Lido blue, heliotrope, apple green, maize, rose-beige and black color mainly.

Gowns and combinations form the usual ensemble but the times call for scalloped slips now and so they are often included. Various pieces show the same cut and trimming. Night-gowns come in an entirely new cut—the wrap-around. Others have side ruffles, pleats and godets to give comfortable fullness.

Individuality is given more consideration in the new modes. There are dainty black point d'esprit evening sets, backless with gold edges, for the woman who likes fine things but simple ones. Others feature black georgette over coral, much slashed and pointed to show the coral and elaborately embroidered.

Some novelties deserve special mention. New in three ways is a princess combination that has gorgeous brocade in a Lido blue for its material—an innovation—that emphasizes the moulded silhouette and that shows the new pointed neckline. The gown of this set is precisely like the combination, only longer.

The sportswoman comes into her own this season. Lingerie designers have fashioned her cute little short suits, with hip yokes and either skirts or bandeau for the uppers. The striped model in orchid and gold, with either an orchid or gold upper, has fashion's approval as proper attire for the golfer or tennis fan.

TRIFLED VOILE AND GEORGETTE

Figured triple voiles and georgettes in beautiful Dolly Varden patterns, fashioned some of the loveliest of spring under-dainties. One is pink, blue and yellow sprays on a flesh background. This is the popular bandeau set—yoke with flaring stevens and bandeau all bound with pink. The scalloped edges and the rounded top of the bodice show the tendency everywhere to avoid straight lines.

IT DOESN'T WORK THE OTHER WAY

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

NOBODY says anything about bobbed hair any more. And now that woman may do more or less as she pleases and there is no thrill in shocking Mrs. Grundy's letting her hair grow back to normality.

Woman got the vote, and now some of the most rabid suffragettes don't know to go to the polls at all. They know that they may vote if they like.

BREAKFAST—Sliced bananas with ready to serve cereal, cream, plain omelet with tomato sauce, eggs, muffins, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON—Vegetable chowder, salad, cracker, bread and orange salad, old-fashioned bread pudding, milk, tea.

DINNER—Pot roast of fish, steamed potatoes in parsley butter, creamed cabbage, lemon meringue pie, milk, coffee.

Any thick fish steak can be used for the pot roast. Cod, halibut, salmon or haddock are usually well-known while swordfish and turbot are delicious when available.

POT ROAST OF FISH

Two pounds halibut, 1 cup, 1 tablespoon bacon fat, 1 onion, 2 cups tomato juice, 1 table-spoon minced parsley, 2 table-spoons sugar, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1 bunch leeks, 4 potatoes.

Melt bacon fat in heavy iron kettle or pot-roaster. Add onion finely minced and cook until brown. Sear fish on both sides in hot fat and onion. Add parsley, sugar, salt, potatoes and leeks finely minced to tomato juice and pour over the fish. Cover closely and cook over a low fire for one and one-half hours. Serve with hot gravy surrounded by the sauteed vegetables.

Then Scouty jumped, and off he ran. "Was lucky for the rabbit that the chase was not delayed."

The other TINYMITES fell in line. Said Clowdy, "It will sure be fine if we can catch our dog again, and let the rabbit go. Come on, there, bunch, and pick up speed, for that's the very thing we need. Well be of no assistance if we travel so slow."

Just then they saw the rabbit hop, and then their dog came to a stop. "Oh, my, I'll be he's caught it," shouted Clowdy, in despair. They very shortly reached the hound. It barked and barked, and ran around. They wondered what was all about. The rabbit was not there.

"Well, goodness me, and bless my soul, the rabbit's run into a hole," said

SAINT AND SINNER

BY ANNE AUSTIN

Faith, lying rigid with her eyes closed, felt and hoped that her heart had stopped beating, but it lunged painfully, and she knew that death, which she had been courting for the day, was not yet won. The whole shameful truth, which she would gladly have died to conceal, would come out now, for after what Fay had said, how could Bob and Cherry fail to blame themselves for her sudden, inexplicable illness?

"Good Lord, Fay! I don't know what you're talking about!" Bob seemed genuinely amazed. Was he going to blurt it out? But that was unlike Bob, Faith thought. "What do you mean—when she got back home?" She didn't come home."

"Oh, but she did!" Fay protested tremulously. "I needed her caring set and some dessert spoons and she offered to drive home and get them. When she got back to my house, she looked just awful, and she laughed so strangely! I asked her if you were still too busy to come for dinner and she said you were and laughed in the craziest way. Then while we were eating—she didn't touch a thing—she looked as if she were going to faint

BEAUTY HOW AND WHY

MAKE-UP PENCILS EYE MAGIC

Ann Alys

BY ANN ALYSIS

MAKE-UP as you see it demonstrated on stage and screen will furnish you with many insights into "how and why" the beauty of the eye may be artificially enhanced, and also as to how defects may be effectively concealed.

The cosmetic pencil, blue, black or brown as the case may be, aid and abetted by mascara, will do wonders. For stage use, the evening makeup—these aids may be used rather freely—but never too freely. And for daytime wear, infinite time and care must be taken. Daylight is so searching:

"It must have been because she didn't want you to see her," Fay interrupted Cherry with surprising asperity. "Something that you two were saying to each other must have been a terrible shock to her. I don't mean to pry, or—or to insinuate anything."

"I hope you don't!" Cherry flared.

"She could have heard everything we said. I was going to tell her anyway, as soon as she got home, wasn't I, Bob?"

"What were you going to tell her, Cherry? It's evidently more important than you thought," Fay persisted.

"This is a queer place to tell it, and it's really awfully premature, but I suppose I'll have to confess," Cherry capitulated, a suggestion of the old flippancy in her voice.

NEXT: Cherry's confession.

FOREIGN WOMEN SET EXAMPLE FOR OTHER WOMEN

Philadelphia (AP)—More than 1,000 immigrant mothers have enrolled in the classes for foreign-born held by the Pennsylvania Council of Jewish Women.

A small cosmetic pencil such as is used in darkening the brows is a handy and delicate makeup instrument, much better for most purposes in my opinion, than large cosmetic sticks. Use it as the corner of the eye, making a stroke outward to the temples, afterward softening the stroke by gently rubbing it down. And for all interests and purposes, you have enlarged the eye at one stroke, as it were.

A soft line drawn under the lower lashes increases their apparent thickness. Follow this by simulating a dark shadow underneath the eye, and a faint suggestion of one on the upper lid and you have increased the length and depth of the eye—and, I'll venture to say, vastly improved your appearance.

But do all this most cautiously and carefully, for the highest form of art lies in its artlessness.

NEXT: The lashes.

New London—A. F. Christ, instructor in manual training and orchestra director in the New London high school, suffered a serious injury to his left hand Thursday morning while instructing a class in manual training. Mr. Christ was working on a rip saw when his hand slipped, severing the fingers. He was given first aid assistance by the school nurse and teachers and later taken to a doctor's office. It was found that the first finger had been severed at the first joint and the second and third fingers cut through the bone at the second joint. Stitches were taken to save the lacerated parts of the first and third fingers, but it is feared that amputation will be necessary at the joint of the middle finger. FRESHMAN AWARDED HIGH SCHOOL HONOR

Arlean Moder of Hortonville Made Grades Averaging 92.75

Hortonville—Honor Roll students for the first semester were announced at the Hortonville High school this week. The highest average in the school was earned by a Freshman, Arlean Moder. Honors for second places are shared by a Senior, Lucille Becker and another Freshman, Alice Hidde. A Junior, Marcella Gitter, was third.

At about the same time that Big Boy was writhing in the agonies of death by poisoning, Queen, the pedigree rat-tailed Irish water spaniel belonging to Dr. J. M. Monsted also was dying of the same cause. Queen, a liver colored patrician of her class, was valued at $150. She was a hardy and most adept retriever, trained by Dr. Monsted, and her gentle, intelligent ways set her apart as a companion. Roused at the night call of the telephone, she stood at the doctor's side with eyes lifted and watchful, or padded thoughtfully after him as he hurriedly collected his things for the call. She took her place for granted on the other half of the seat, and with that queer gesture which some dog lovers call a saw and others a laugh, settled for the lonely drive.

Seniors—Lucille Becker, 91.75; Jane Botteneck, 91.5; Elmer Dobberstein, 91; Lloyd Jack, 91.5; Alice Hidde, 92.25; Oscar Bohren, 91.25; Delia Komp, 90.25; Walter Kaufman, 90.

Sophomores—Oliver Lettske, 91.25; Freshmen—Arlean Moder, 92.75; Alice Hidde, 92.25; Oscar Bohren, 91.25; Delia Komp, 90.25.

Seniors—Jane Botteneck, Lucille Becker, Everett Johnson; Elsie Prentice. Juniors—Lorraine Kruckeberg and Olive Lettske. Sophomores—Harland Jones and Oliver Lettske.

Freshmen—Francis Beshta, Florence Buckman, Kermit Diestler, Etola Krenke, Arlene Morack, Lucile Sanborn, Francis Schuldes.

TAKE SEED EXHIBITS ON SOUTHERN TOUR

Experiment Station Will Be Represented on Advertising Train

Madison—(AP)—The Wisconsin Experiment Station, in which desired types of seeds are developed, and the state seed experiment association, which has aided the station in finding and raising pure-bred seeds will be represented on the Southern Tour starting as the state's official booster train Feb. 7.

Two sides of one of the baggage cars carrying the educational, agricultural, industrial and recreational "sales talk," of Wisconsin will be used by the station and association.

On the station side of the car will be three panels of pictures and reading matter telling of the work briefly. One panel will picture prosperous corn fields in Wisconsin and the legend will tell of the improvement of corn yield through development of better seed. The second panel will treat barely, oats and wheat in the same manner and the third will picture and tell of the canning pea trial grounds of the station. Sheaves of grain will aid in decoration of the booth.

Tables between or under the panel exhibits will carry samples of the perfectly grown, weather and soil-suited grains.

The association's exhibit, on the opposite wall will have the same three panel appearance and will take up other matters in connection with development and sale of the selected seeds. Its center panel explains the association as "an organization of seed growers who produce and market highly quality seeds of the improved varieties. Trade-marked sacks in which the association's seed is sold will decorate the exhibit, with more sheaves of the Wisconsin grain.

George Briggs, extension department agronomist who will have charge of the exhibit will be prepared to furnish middle-western and southerners with complete information on growers of the Wisconsin-developed seeds, through booklets to be taken with the exhibit. "Pedigreed Crops That Pay" is an official bulletin of the state college of agriculture will be among these.

recommend ALL-BRAN—the 100% bran.

Farewell, dangerous drugs

How much better is ALL-BRAN than habit-forming pills and laxatives—whose dose must be constantly increased to remain effective. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is a pleasant, healthful cereal food. Don't you agree that it is far safer and far better to correct constipation in this natural way than to risk pills, drugs or part-bran products?

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is delicious with milk or cream—with fruits or honey added. Use it in cooking too. Sprinkle it into soups. Mix it with other cereals. Just eat two tablespoons daily—chronic cases, with every meal.

But insist on genuine Kellogg's. Don't risk part-bran substitutes. ALL-BRAN is sold by all grocers. Served in hotels, restaurants, on dining-cars. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Guaranteed! Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is sold with this definite guarantee: Eat it according to directions. If it does not relieve constipation safely, we will refund the purchase price.

BEGIN MOVEMENT TO SPLIT UP CITY FIRE DEPARTMENT

McGillan Intimates That De-centralization Must Be Started Soon

The first move to de-centralize the Appleton fire department was started Wednesday evening by the city council when it voted to purchase an additional pumping unit and a pump to be installed on one of the trucks not now equipped.

Fire Chief George P. McGillan told members of the city council that he would not ask for additional men to man the truck until the department was spread out in the city. The new truck will be placed in the downtown barns and the steam engine probably moved to the street department barns on Walnut St. Addition of a new truck will permit two engines to be kept in reserve at the fire station, one as an emergency unit and one fully manned to protect the remainder of the city.

A hint that the de-centralizing of the department is not far off was given at a meeting of the fire and water committee and the chief of the department Tuesday morning. At that time Chief McGillan said the movement should be started soon and Alderman Mark Acton suggested that the city appoint a private individual to buy property for fire barns.

"Every time people and the city wants to buy property they push the price higher," Alderman Acton said. "If we must de-centralize the department I suggest we appoint some one to buy property for the sites so they may be obtained at reasonable cost."

STAGE And SCREEN

POWERFUL DRAMA, STERLING CAST IN "THE WHIP WOMAN"

A powerful dramatic story of a little spitfire on the banks of the Danube, who knew how to take care of herself in a world of men who desired her, is "The Whip Woman," a First National picture, at the Elite Theatre today Saturday and Sunday.

Estelle Taylor, who has not been seen on the screen since "Don Juan," is the girl who wields her whip so effectively in wounding off those who would spoil her dream of love, while Antonio Moreno is the man who makes her dream come true after a stormy voyage on the seas of romance.

Rarely has Miss Taylor been so effective as in this strong, simple story of a Hungarian peasant maid. All the fire of her personality is evident, and New York critics have hailed this as her greatest performance to date.

Antonio Moreno is unusually fine as the nobleman in disgrace with his family.

The course of their love, however, is troubled, and the story revolves around the crisis where she receives treatment of the sort she has been dealing to others, and which brings her to her senses and saves her from misunderstanding and disgrace.

The picture is directed in masterly fashion by Joseph C. Boyle, and is exquisitely photographed by Ernest Haller. Robert Kane, who presents the picture for First National, and Allan Dwan, who produced and supervised it, have gathered a strong cast, including Lowell Sherman, Hedda Hopper, Julianne Johnston and Loretta Young, who plays her first important role to date in "The Whip Woman." The picture is thoroughly good entertainment.

FARCE, NEXT AT FISCHERS

"A Hero for a Night," Universal production, starring Glenn Tryon and with Patsy Ruth Miller in the main supporting role, has been booked by Fischers Appleton Theatre to be shown Saturday and Sunday.

The picture has been acclaimed one of the most laughable farce comedies of the year and deals with the efforts of a correspondence school aviator to fly across the Atlantic Ocean. He does eventually but not when he intends to and not before he

Mellon Always 'Rarin' To Go' Wears Hat At Breakfast

Washington — "Mr. Mellon," says one of the secretary of the treasury's helpers, "will sooner or later be run down by an automobile."

"Mr. Mellon always runs across the street with little or no regard for what is coming. He always seems to be in too much of a hurry to wait at the crosswalks."

Mr. Mellon is an active man. He scampers upstairs two steps at a time, which would not be so unusual were it not for the fact that Mr. Mellon will soon be 74 years old.

Your correspondent has it from someone who ought to know that Mr. Mellon wears his hat at breakfast for no particular reason apparently, except that Mr. Mellon wants to be all ready to go. There being no Mr. Mellon, no one ever objects. Of course your correspondent cannot personally vouch for the story of Mr. Mellon's breakfast hat, because among his distinctions is not that of having been given orange juice with Mr. Mellon.

The question naturally arises as to just what automobile will bump Mr. Mellon and bring him to a standstill.

has enough thrilling experience to keep him awake for months.

The directorial palm goes to William James Craft, fast becoming known as one of our leading farce comedy directors and the man responsible for the great success of the Universal production, "Painting the Town," which brought Tryon into stardom and established Miss Miller as a leading comedienne.

Harry O. Hoyt, author of "Painting the Town," also wrote the original story for this opus, thereby once more bringing together the four persons responsible for what critics concede to be the greatest surprise picture of last year. It is believed, however, that "A Hero for a Night" will even surpass the other picture as a box-office attraction.

The supporting cast was carefully chosen and includes some of the best known personages on the screen today, among them being Lloyd Whitlock, Burr McIntosh, Bob Milash and Ruth Dwyer.

Mellon and there might be much less diplomatic immunity after that.

Let's all pray that Mr. Mellon may remain agile.

One of the most agile and active old-timers in this town is General John J. Pershing, now 74. The old A. E. F. commander, judging from observation and information, is in perfect health. There are other reasons why Pershing probably won't become president, but no one will be daunt enough to suggest that he is too old.

Public's services are being used against a little over one-half million dollars a day, and before the war.

The French army will continue to wear horizon blue until 1935.

THE STORY THIS FAB
The story is laid in the Indian territory and along the Kansas border in the '90's, when a fight was being waged by the "Boomers" for the opening of the territory to settlement.

Chief characters are:

TONY HARRISON, orphaned at 13 when his father was murdered in a poker game;

PAWNEE BILL, adventurer, Indian interpreter and showman;

JOE CRAIG, who takes Tony to the Bar K ranch to live;

titus MOORE, owner of the Bar K;

RITA MOORE, his little tomboy daughter;

Some years later, when Rita and her mother depart for east and a finishing school, the boy learns for the first time how much he cares for Titus Moore's red-haired, arrogant, daughter.

Moore is one of the chief opponents of the movements to open Oklahoma. Word is received that DAVID PAYNE, leader of the movement, is dead, and Tony, in his loyalty to Moore, is troubled because of his sympathy for Payne's cause.

He tries to forget Rita Moore and accompanies Pawnee Bill and BUFFALO BILL on a wild west show tour.

CHAPTER XXX

The show closed in Denver the following spring and Tony Harrison went back to the Bar K. Some time later Pawnee Bill and his Indians went east again to join Healy and Bigelow and Tony heard from him from time to time, his letters coming first from Brooklyn, and later, Philadelphia.

In September Tony got a letter containing real news. Pawnee Bill was married.

"August 31, 1886," he wrote, "marks the turning point in my life. Despite the fact that I was almost broke, May Manning and I were married on that day and now I've sense enough to know that money wasn't meant to be wasted. Hereafter I'm going to make it my business to pile it up and to make a god name for myself at the same time."

"We're staying for the present on my father's farm near Wellington. Drop in and see us some time."

May Lillie was utterly bewildered at the life around her. Tony found when he visited them. She was small and vivacious and plainly very much in love with her husband.

"I'm going to keep him at home here," she declared, clutching Pawnee Bill's arm. "I'm not going to let him go gallivanting around the country with a bunch of wild Indians."

"What are your plans?" Tony asked.

Pawnee Bill when they were alone. The other gestured hopelessly with his hands. "I don't know. Soon as things get settled down some I'll go back to the show business, I reckon. She's homesick—thing is, I'm homesick for her out in this country. I think she's afraid I'll lose my scalp."

He added that he was lending his moral support to the Boomers. "You heard what happened last fall?"

Tony Harrison shook his head.

"Well, a big bunch of them went in November, led by Couch, I believe. They were run out by the Fifth Cavalry, under Lieutenant Colonel Sumner. They've stayed out since then and some of them are plumb discouraged. I've been doing a little missionary work here and there, and if I can do any good I'll jump in and help them. I guess Craig wouldn't like that if he knew it."

The autumn passed and Tony once more awoke one morning to find ice on the creek. A few mornings later he and Craig, riding over to the west fence, discovered a spot where it had been torn down.

Craig's face clouded. Rapidly he wheeled his horse and rode over to the main herd. "Near as I can figure," he announced, "about a hundred of them are missing. Let's get back to that fence."

There he dismounted and began examining the ground. "White men," he said tersely, pointing to some frozen prints. "White men, or Indians in boots, which ain't likely. Probably happened two or three days ago. Come on."

They followed the plain trail of cattle hoof prints for several miles, to a point where they merged into thousands of other prints just like them. There Craig shook his head.

"A herd going up to Caldwell," he pronounced. "Might be a Texas outfit, but I doubt it; it's so late in the year. 'Til bet my last dollar it was the Half Moon X outfit; they're mighty handy with a branding iron, and it's not a hard job to work a Half Moon X brand over a Bar K. I'm rid-

"You come back here, Tony, and get me a doctor—there's plenty of others after them."

"But none of them's got a horse like Cherokee," Tony retorted, and leaped to Cherokee's back. Craig's profane exhortations to return still ringing in his ears.

One to he passed the posse in pursuit of Benton and his men. Several of these urged him on with a wave of the arm. "They robbed the bank," he heard one of them about. "Man, I heard that shooting of yours; go on!"

But he told himself that it was not to be a race between Cherokee and the horses of the bank robbers, but a race between Cherokee and the on-rushing darkness. The stallion leaped beneath him like a splendid piece of machinery and he bent forward to speak in his ears, just as he had formerly done with Cherokee's mother.

"Cherokee, can you understand? Ahead of us is a man who murdered my father and plugged Joe Craig. Run, boy run!"

Tony asked him.

"What can I prove? I don't think Regier, the owner of the Half Moon X, knows anything about it, though. I've known 'em to pull off a few deals with rustlers before this."

He had passed the last of the pursuit party half a mile back, and ahead of him in the gathering twilight, flying dust had evolved into the figures of mounted men; tiny specks of men, growing larger and at the same time more indistinct as the night fell.

Two minutes more and they had faded from sight altogether. Tony half sobbed in his rage. "Half an hour, Cherokee, and we'd have had them."

"No. Is he?"

"Yeah, got a year off for good behavior. He showed up in Caldwell three four months ago and then left. I don't know where."

"Well, I hope he turns straight. Tony, here's to you." He swung around and raised his glass.

He set it down again without drinking. A fusillade of shots had sounded about and the thudding of horses' hoofs.

"Kind of early to start shootin' things up, ain't it?" Craig said, and started for the door.

As he swung it open five horsemen, all brandishing six-guns and all with their hate pulled down over their eyes, thundered past, bent law in their saddle.

Craig emitted a startled cry, just as the nearest horseman fired. "Benton!" he gasped, and half spun around and fell.

Tony, thunderstruck, bent over him an instant and then sprang to the street. Other men had rushed from buildings and a few were scrambling into their saddles while others fired after the fleeing riders.

Tony, a cold, deadly calm settling over him, pulled out his revolver and leveled it. At the third shot he saw one of the horsemen throw up his hands and slip sideways out of his saddle, to be dragged by his stirrups entangled foot for a hundred feet and then lie still in the roadway. Coolly he emptied the weapon and then ran to Joe Craig.

The cowpuncher was smiling. "Should have known better than to go to the door without drawing my gun first," he grinned. "I'm drilled through the shoulder. Where you going?" he cried as he saw the youth head out of the door.

"I'm going after them."

FROWN ON NURSES' TRAINING BY MAIL

Director of State Bureau Says
"Graduates" Are Not Allowed to Practice

the bureaus by a prominent Wisconsin surgeon who had been circularized and offered a fee for any pupils he might refer to the school.

"The idea of training nurses by mail is only another evidence of the greediness of human nature," he said.

This school, according to its literature, gives a twelve weeks' course and offers a diploma and the title "trained practical nurse." According to Miss

Eldredge, the use of the word "trained" in applying for employment in Wisconsin and many other states is not permitted except by graduates of accredited hospital training schools authorized to award it.

"It is an impossibility," said Miss Eldredge, "for a girl to acquire a competent nursing education or even the elements of nursing, through correspondence. One great defect in such a plan is lack of hospital training and of ability to apply lessons in actual care of the sick. In the case of the school, complained of, there is neither an age limit nor any high school education required of students and it declares that

"just a plain public school training is all that is necessary." A girl taking such a course will gain little for her money, and will find she will have little standing and will not even be permitted to practice under a recognized title, in any state."

West Green Bay high school has not beaten Appleton high school on the local floor for many, many years, but it looks like the Purpleclad Baymen have their best chance in all those years Friday evening when the rivals clash at Armory G. Three quarters of the Valley scribes favor the Baymen to win with Herber experiencing his greatest season since he entered high school and it will be an upset if the Orange fight on the home floor before a crowd of home boosters can turn the trick.

A loss will shove the losing team into the second division with three losses for the season and the season only half over, and probably will end its title aspirations. To beat the Baymen Appleton must do one thing and do it well and that is to have the basket drive of Herby Herber, a plenty hard task for any high school squad in the entire state. Beside that Skelly, a forward, in a fine shot and Baeb, a guard and Willems, who shifts to Herber's guard when Herby moves to center, are both towers of strength on defense.

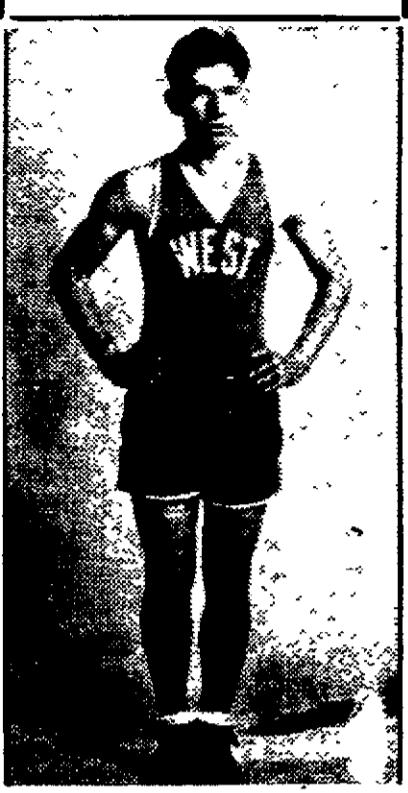

Coach Shields expects to start and Bowby at the forward berths in the hopes the speedy midgets may be able to outdrive the Bay defense and show a good passing game. Bowby's eye came back against Manitowoc for the first time this year, though he is really the best shot on the squad. He scored three baskets the opening period but again failed the last half until he had to be yanked. If his eye is "on" the entire game West will have plenty of trouble stopping him. In case he fails, the steady Gochnauer, who always manages to ring at least one basket in the short time he is in, will come to the rescue.

Ratho, who still is far from the peak in spite of his great work against Marinette, will be at center. He should be more dangerous against the Bays than against Manitowoc, when he scored just one ring, but he still needs plenty of work in handling himself well under the hoop where his six feet might be used to great advantage.

He will be closely watched by the Baymen. Against Marinette he scored heavily but missed almost as many simple shots.

At guards will be Strutz and Johnston, a reliable pair, and Swede may find himself designated to handle Herber if the speedy Bayman cannot be handled otherwise. This will be especially true if Herber is used as he has been the last few weeks, at center offense, where Swede can get at him. Last year the local player worked at forward and followed Herber, then at guard, even under his own hoop, bothering him on every basket try, though sometimes fouling. And at that time Swede was an inexperienced man, playing his first year of any kind of basketball. Johnston still has a score to settle with the Baymen from the West-Appleton football

MUST BE STOPPED

ARNIE HERBER

Whatever chances Coach Joseph Shields' Appleton high school cagers have of beating the snappy West Green Bay quintet in an important Valley conference game here Friday evening depend on their ability to effectively stop the young gentleman pictured above. In case you're not sure who he is, it is easily explained that he is Herby Herber, leading scorer of the Valley conference, though playing a guard position, a man who has averaged 12 points a game this year. Last year he also was among the first three consistently finishing behind Testwude of Sheboygan and Lutz of Appleton in scoring and he was unanimous choice for all-conference guard, in spite of the fact that he scored only six points in two games against Appleton. He must be halted almost as effectively this year and he is being "fed" constantly.

LENA JAHNKE LEADS WOMEN PIN ARTISTS

Lena Jahnke leads members of the Appleton Women's City Bowling League in averages for the season to date, issued Friday. Miss Jahnke has knocked over 516 pins in 3 games for a mark of 172. The real leader is Mae Tornow who has 701 pins in 42 games for a 166 average. Ellen Dunn is third with a 161 average.

The averages:

Lena Jahnke, 172; Mae Tornow, 166; Ellen Dunn, 161; Eleanor Ellis, 155; Viola Wenzloff, 155; Sylvia Roudabush, 154; Bert Koltsch, 153; Leola Dunn, 153; Lottie Austin, 151; Sue Jensen, 151; Arline Sighinsky, 147; Mathilda Stoegbauer, 145; Edith Bernhardt, 144; Helen Glasnap, 143; Laura Boldt, 142; Martha Lueckel, 142; Rose Rieckert, 139; Laura Leenders, 132; Laura Black, 130; Leone Vogel, 129; Leone Bolte, 129; Celia Hoolihan, 127; Helen Miller, 126; Ruth Grieuer, 122; Ethel Hager, 115; Minnie Harp, 111; Del Timmers, 106; Moreno Stark, 105; Gladys Vogel, 99; Helen Winkel, 89.

game last fall which Herber won, 12-0, almost singlehanded and Swede had trouble because of injuries and a weak lead to him.

Anyway, it's "Stop Herber and beat Green Bay" in the Appleton camp this week.

Helen Wills Has No Foes To Bother Her In Tennis

BY HENRY L. FARRELL

Distinguished champions in no small number took the count during the 1927 season and more in the natural course of events will step down this year, but there seems to be one pretty and popular young miss who has all the promise of a continued reign.

We asked a gentleman who makes a very handsome living by picking winners and playing them what the odds should be that Helen Wills will be the champion when the 1928 tennis season closes.

"Till last to one" he said, with a moment's hesitation, "and I'll let you have accidents and illness against me."

It would seem then that the young Berkely girl is getting pretty as the new season approaches and is in a position to watch the other girls fight for the lower places on the international ranking list.

There is no doubt that Miss Wills ranks as the greatest amateur woman player in the world today and there are a number of competent critics who believe she could beat Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, if a meeting could be arranged.

Another match between the great French wizard and the young American artist on first thought might seem to be out of the question because open competition between a professional and an amateur is not countenanced by the tennis association and also because Mlle. Lenglen has announced that she intends to play no more in public.

But a lot of strange and radical moves by such a conservative organization as the tennis association may be expected if the association doesn't find some way of getting the financial support of the public for the amateur championship tournaments.

It would not be a shock to those who have access to some facts to hear that the association might approve of or even promote a match between her Rene Lacoste and Lamine Richards and between Mlle. Lenglen and Miss Wills. Maybe this is a dream.

As far as her national position is concerned, Miss Wills is far ahead of the class and her international security is as well established.

Betty Nutball, the pretty little English girl, may arrive when Miss Wills has passed her prime. But women tennis players last for a long time. Miss Nutball is not a menace now as she has just learned to serve overhead.

Kira Bouman, the charming Dutch girl; Senorita D'Alvarez, the dazzling Spanish girl; Kitty McKane Godfree, the English champion and Dodi Vlasto are all first class players but they do not rank with Miss Wills.

Bill Tilden says "You can group the women players in only one way. Miss Wills has no equal and the others have to be placed in a secondary and lower group. She ought to be the champion for six or seven more years and she is still a very young girl and she loves tennis."

"Living tennis" is the big asset of the California girl. It is her hobby and almost her life. The other girls do not take their game so seriously. You will see Senorita D'Alvarez in the picture above enjoying the winter sports at St. Moritz.

With the exception of Mrs. Godfree, the other European stars are wealthy and they do not care to take the trouble to train and keep up on their game.

Miss Wills, in the opinion of Mary K. Browne, one of the best critics in the game, is now at the top of her form.

"I don't believe she can improve her game, but she doesn't need to better it. She can keep it on the same edge for years and that will make her the superior of her class. I believe she could have given Mlle. Lenglen a terrific fight when Mlle. Lenglen was in her prime. Perhaps she could have beaten

SATURDAY GAMES
2:30—Kimberly Club vs. Co. D.
2:30—Coated Paper vs. Mulford Clothing

Either one of the four teams tied for third place in the Appleton Industrial-Commercial basketball league will fall to sixth Saturday evening in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium or else the race for first will be greatly tightened. For in the second game of the evening the Kaukauna Mulford Clothiers oppose the Appleton Coated Paper Co.

A win for the Coateds will allow that team to hold its big game and a half lead over its nearest for the Fox River Paper five and will leave only the Citizens Bank, Weber Cozy Knits and Kimberly-Clark Co. teams for third, shoving the Mulfords to sixth. On the other had a Mulford win will give the Coateds a 7-2 standing, just a half game above the Fox River 6-2 mark and will place the Mulfords in third with a 5-3 mark, just a game from the Foxmen in second. Two or three other teams will be in a fourth-place tie, just a half game from the Mulfords and two games behind the Coateds in first place.

The classy Coated team is an easy favorite to win but on the association floor no game is decided until the final whistle. Many upsets have featured this year's schedule to date, a fair team often beating a leader. Last week the weekend Citizens Bank quint took an overtime win from the strong Fox River title contenders and the Rivermen had won by at least 16 points earlier in the year.

The first game of the evening is sure to break the third place tie as the Kimberly-Clark Co. five opposes Co. D, the cellar team of the loop which still has to win a league contest. Kimberly is a heavy favorite to take a lone third place.

With the favorites winning Saturday evening, the Coateds will hold the top with a 6-1 mark, Fox River will be second with 6-2, Kimberly will be third with 5-3, Webers and Citizens will be tied for fourth with 4-3, the Mulfords will be sixth with 4-4, and the Kaukauna Y. M. C. A. teams will bring up the rear with 1-7, 0-3, respectively.

URGE MARKET STRATEGY TO SECURE BEST PRICES

Madison—(AP)—"Market strategy"—a rapid and accurate information service combined with proper cooperative action—was advocated as a means to bring about better distribution of agricultural products, by J. H. Vint, commissioner of markets.

Mr. Vint, a speaker at a Farm Folks Week meeting here, said that "in these days of commercial agriculture the prices of farm products are the result of a combined action of a number of factors, such as supply, demand, market information, quality, seasonal production and industrial conditions. These factors are called market forces and their action determines the price at which farm products move. Market strategy consists in controlling these forces in such a manner as to get an advantageous price."

"Among the various market forces, two are fundamental: they are supply and demand. It is clear that the goal before the farmers is to use their power of influencing these market forces so as to bring about proper adjustment between supply and demand, which alone is a guarantee of stable markets and fair prices."

COAL FREIGHT RATES TO WISCONSIN HINGE ON HEARING IN EAST

State Submits Brief of Its Approval of Proposed Tariff Reduction

Madison—(AP)—Wisconsin is vitally interested in the out-come of a two-day coal hearing before the Interstate Commerce Commission concluded Thursday in Washington on a proposal to reduce lake cargo rates, according to the state railroad commission. Railroads carrying coal from West Virginia and Kentucky to Lake Erie ports, from whence it moves by boats to Lake Michigan and Lake Superior for transhipment by rail to the northwest, have requested permission to file a rate which would reduce the present differential 20 cents. If the commission grants the rate, Kentucky and West Virginia mines will be able to compete with the products of Pittsburgh and Ohio region, Mr. Bryan says.

The Wisconsin public utilities body a few weeks ago assigned one of its members, Samuel Bryan, to attend the hearing in Washington. It later withdrew the assignment so that Mr. Bryan might take part in a hearing held in St. Paul at the same time on proposed merger of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern Railroads. It has, however, presented a brief to the interest body, setting forth its approval of the proposed reduction in rates.

The state commission, and similar bodies of Michigan, Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota, view the coal rate fight as an economic battle between two large producing districts to secure control of the lake cargo market, which is estimated at approximately thirty million tons of coal annually.

If the Interstate commerce commission permits the petitioning railroads to put into effect their lower rates, it will mean a reduction of approximately six million dollars in freight revenue. Mr. Bryan says, from which reduction the consumers of coal in Wisconsin and surrounding states will benefit.

In its brief to the Interstate Commerce body, the Wisconsin commission urges that it "bear in mind the vital interests of the domestic and industrial consumers of the northwest, who are very largely dependent upon the lake-cargo coal for an adequate and dependable fuel supply."

It contends that refusal to grant the proposed rate will result in an entirely disproportionate increase in the cost to the consumer in Wisconsin.

How To Play Bridge

By Milton C. Work

Having concluded last week the consideration of Major two and three bids when playing Contract, we next come to the question of Minor two and three bids. This is a most difficult subject to discuss because so many different opinions exist concerning it. No particular system can be said to be generally conventional and it seems to be a case in which it is still necessary for each player to reach his own determination, or each table to come to a common understanding.

One plan is to make a Minor two-bid convey exactly the same meaning as in Auction Bridge, viz., Ace-King-Queen and three others, with the probability of some little side support, though that is not a requisite) and the possibility of further length or strength in the suit bid; but there are many who do not consider this six-card holding to be important to show in a Minor, and who prefer to give Minor two-bids arbitrary conventional meanings which can be understood only by players to whom the system has been explained. These schemes apply only to a love score; with any normal score, the Minor being as valuable as the Major is at love, it would be bid like a Major.

The most novel and effective of these conventions is used to show a bidable two-suiter composed of either two Major or two Minors, that is, a two-suiter strong enough for an initial bid, in which the two suits are Spades and Hearts, or in which they are Diamonds and Clubs. Bidding two-suiter—a smoothly conventional process in Auction—is a difficult problem in Contract; and the arbitrary convention I am about to describe is so simple and so marvelously effective that it must compel admiration even when it fails to secure adoption. Using this convention, an initial bid of two Diamonds means a strong Spade-Heart two-suiter, and an initial bid of two Clubs means a strong Diamond-Club two-suiter.

When the two-Diamond bid is made, the partner with a weak hand would be expected to bid two Spades or two Hearts, depending upon which of these two suits happens to be the longer. That bid would be a forced take-out and would not announce length or strength—merely a preference. It would not, but would have the same Major bidding strength of the Major, three being one-jump and four a

Lack Of Sleep Hinders School Children, Report

Madison—Poor school work among sixteen years should sleep at least ten hours.

These are some of the conclusions announced by the health committee of the State Medical Society in a bulletin issued this week. It declares that child may regain lost weight if put on a regular sleeping schedule.

"During the past few years, physicians interested in the welfare of children, have devoted much attention to the results of fatigue in childhood," declares the Medical Society's bulletin. "It has been shown that children who do not get sufficient rest and sleep may develop many serious conditions, among which are malnutrition, nervous instability, faulty posture, and instability in school work. It would be amazing to most people to know the results obtained by securing more sleep for children with these conditions. The modern child has many more inducements to stay up at night and the radio, movies and small apartments are chiefly to blame.

"A child of one year should have fourteen hours sleep with a morning and afternoon nap. At four years, he should have twelve hours sleep, with an afternoon nap. At ten years, he should have eleven hours sleep and from twelve to sixteen years, he should have ten hours sleep. A normal child is very active and plays vigorously. He is using large amounts of energy which must be supplied by the food he eats. If too much of the energy supplied by the food is used for activity, the child does not grow properly and either fails to gain or loses weight. His muscles do not receive proper nourishment and become toneless and flabby. His nervous system also suffers and this lead to a failure to concentrate and quiet fatigue. To complicate matters more, the appetite is impaired and less food is taken.

"The tired child can usually be recognized by the history of insufficient sleep, malnutrition, poor posture, lack of endurance, poor school-work, irritability, and circles under the eyes. The treatment consists in cutting down activity, resuming naps, getting the child to bed earlier and keeping him there longer. The evening amusements are dispensed with and bedtime comes soon after supper. In severe cases, the child is given a rest cure and kept in bed for several days, or one day each, or allowed up only a few hours a day. The weight increases and the nervous symptoms disappear.

"If your child is underweight or does not do well in school, it may be wise to try giving him more rest, before his tonsils and adenoids are removed, or a tonic is given to make him eat more."

EX-SLAVES DEATH REVEALS FORTUNE

Lexington, Ky.—A fortune, variously estimated at $250,000 to $500,000, was revealed upon the death here of Ellen Davis, "the South's richest negress." Although his former slave, the dead negro had won the confidence of John Hughes, wealthy farmer, and upon his death he left the bulk of his estate to her and her son. She retained the property through lengthy litigation instituted by Hughes' relatives.

Abraham Lincoln Once Said—

"You can't fool all the people all the time." Apparently in this modern age, you can't fool many of the people any of the time. Voecks Bros. have long realized this — and have during their quarter of a century in business maintained a quality and standard of meat that not even the most discriminating have ever questioned.

KAWMEN CONFIDENT OF WHIPPING DE PERE

McAndrews Crew Still Has Chance of Getting into District Tournament

Kaukauna—After a hard week of practice the Kaukauna High school basketball team left Friday afternoon for De Pere to meet the East High school team in Northeastern Wisconsin Interscholastic conference tilt. The Kaws have still to win their first game of the season. Although the quins has played hard in games this winter not enough headwork has been shown to put it on the long end of the score.

At the opening of the season the squad was handicapped because of a lack of veteran material and that which was on hand did not come through in the style expected. This bad start coupled with the ill luck of having to meet some of the strongest quins in the "Little Fifteen" early in the season has not given Macmen a very good basketball reputation. There still are enough games on the schedule in February so that the team can comeback and have an opportunity of entering the district basketball tournament in March.

Changes in the lineup have not materially strengthened the team any and it is quite probable that the old lineup will start against the down river basketeers. In the first meeting with East De Pere, Kaukauna lost by a small margin.

Among the probable starters are Willis Miller at center, Karl Farwell and Lloyd Derus or Captain Myron Estes at forwards and Richard Ferguson and R. Sager or M. Miller at guards. Landreman, H. Doering and Herman Dix will accompany the squad. The game will be played as the second part of a double-header at the West De Pere High school gym. New London meets West De Pere in the gym at 7:30.

ELECTRIC CITY'S WIN FROM KIMBERLY TEAM

Howard Coppel portrays Henry Jordan, a typical hen-pecked husband and he offers a pleasant contrast to his wife, Emma, acted by Loyola Egan. Loretta Sutis as Nettie is a shallow little rustic trying her best to become a flapper and Ella, played by Edna Ester, is an old maid through no fault of her own as she is determined to get a man even if she has to buy one.

BIG CROWD PLEASED WITH LITTING TUNES OF BAND'S COMEDY

"His Honor The Mayor" Is Interesting Home Talent Entertainment

Appleton and Neenah talent pleased a huge crowd Thursday evening in Lawrence Memorial chapel when the musical comedy, "His Honor, the Mayor," was presented for the benefit of the 12th Field Artillery band.

Songs which made a decided hit with the audience were "If You Knew a Little Girl Like Me," sung by Miss Peg Boslough, as Daisy the milliner girl from Illinois; "Come Where the Wild Vines Cling," by Donna Herman, playing the part of Katrinka the Gypsy and J. B. Langenberg, as Captain Zitzky of the Hungarian Hussars; and "Souvenirs," sung by Fred Tresz as T. Chesterfield Preble or Tommy Preble.

The principal comedy bits were played by Harry Oaks, as Teddy Todd, the Mayor of Kankakee, Ill., J. F. Bannister as Deacon Floor of Kankakee and Miss Bertha Barry as his daughter May Flood.

The work of Miss Boslough in what might be called the leading female role was excellent, and her singing was especially good. George Theiss, as "Freddy" Sampson, a cowboy, showed talent as a character actor.

The dancing of the choruses was "spicy" and good and their singing in thorns parts also was of high rank.

Members of the pony ballet were Vesper Chamberlain, Katherine Small, Alice Wollie, Leone Tennissen, Eddie Zuehlke and Noreta Poerner.

The art student and Parisian chorus was composed of Dean Chamberlain, Inez Pendleton, Phyllis Orinstein, Eleanor Voecks, Agnes Levandoski, Marie Hitchler, Nila Kittleton, Harriet Steward, Gertrude Fassbender, Jeanette Johnston, Ramona Huesemann, Marie Robbins and Janet Menning.

Hungarian nobles were Robert Zerg, Lawrence Chamberlain, Roger Hartman, Sylvester Harriman, Earl Wooden, Cletus Vanderheyden, Gordon Maher and John Lewis.

Edward F. Mumus was musical director in had conducted the 30-piece symphony orchestra, whose work was a feature of the show. James H. Balliet was ticket chairman; J. F. Bannister was in charge of the scenery and electrical effects; Mrs. Bannister the dancing and Matt Roemer and Carl Schieber were property managers.

The costumes were in charge of Mrs. Bannister, Mrs. Carl Woerner, Mr. Fustison, Mrs. G. L. Chamberlain, Mrs. J. M. Van Rooy, Mrs. Norbert Roemer and Mrs. Frank Barta.

Fred Tresz played the part of T. Chesterfield Preble, a young "blood" of Kankakee and J. Martin Van Rooy was Jack Thayer, Preble's friend. The pair supported Mr. Oaks in his comedy parts and were featured in vocal solos. Carl Schieber was the hard-working marriage broker, Solomon Synphonstein, whose greatest trouble was marrying off his many clients.

Solomon finally succeeds in interesting Mayor Todd in Katrinka, a gypsy maiden, portrayed by Donnie Herriman. Miss Herriman also sings one of the hits of the play, assisted by J. B. Langenberg, as Captain Rudolph Zitzky of the Hungarian Hussars, her burned lover, Donald McMahon, the part of Lieutenant Chippin, the captain's aide.

Mrs. W. H. Dean took the part of Mrs. Vane, a widow, and Ernestine Johnson played Marjorie Vane, her daughter. Bryan Scrooge took the part of R. LaCarte, proprietor of LaCarte's hotel and Albert Hipp was host, waiter at the hotel.

APPLETON TOO SMALL FOR POLICE SCHOOL*Chief Says It Is a Good Thing
but That the Force Is Not Large Enough

Police schools similar to the one organized in Madison are a good thing, but Appleton is too small to maintain a school according to George T. Pum, chief of police. The chief said when new recruits are taken into the department here they undergo training the first six months they are on the force.

The school in Madison, which is sponsored by the Madison Vocational school, covers the following subjects: Duties and responsibilities of a police officer; discipline, deportment and mental fitness; records and reports; orders and organization; complaints and alarms; loyalty; artificial respiration. The last subject is the first of a series of classes in first aid work.

Classes for the Madison police are held each Tuesday and two sections have been formed so that day and night shifts can be accommodated. The classes are taught by men who have had considerable experience in police work. Such men as Judge M. B. Rosenberg, state supreme court justice; General George F. O'Connell of the Wisconsin National Guard, Chief J. E. Laubender of Milwaukee and many others have offered their services to aid in making the school a success.

SHOE COMPANY MAKES MORE PROFITS IN 1927

The net income of the G. R. Kinney company, incorporated, which operates a string of shoe stores in various parts of the country, was $502,470 during 1927, figures released by E. H. Krom, president of the company recently revealed. The amount provides $6.19 per share on 60,000 shares of common stock now outstanding.

The report for 1926 showed a net income of $577,031 providing for $2.18 per share on the common stock. The net for 1927 amounted to $15.18 per share on eight percent preferred stock, as compared with $10.61 for the previous year.

Operating expenses and cost of sales as shown on the consolidated profit and loss statement, were $16,227,655, a reduction of roughly two millions of a million dollars over the year previous to approximately the same amount of sales.

"Quit Last Minute Slander" Plea Of Ohio Congressman*BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington—Have you ever run for election to anything and been defeated by last-minute slander to the effect that you once embezzled $600, or that you were secretly a devil-worshiper or that you once eloped with somebody's cook?

Perhaps you could have refuted the calumny if given a day or so, but there was no time and the voters, fearing to take any chances, gave you a trouncing. The same thing has happened to other good men.

Or possibly you just got through by the skin of your teeth in the face of such tactics, which may have been what happened to Congressman Charles J. Thompson of Defiance, O.

who returned to Washington to introduce a bill which would discourage that sort of thing.

Thompson would amend the corrupt practices act so that it would be unlawful for any candidate or any of his friends to circulate within 15 days preceding the election "any charge against or attack upon the personal character or conduct of any candidate, unless a copy of such attack has been personally served upon the candidate or upon him who made at least eighteen days prior to the election" anyone publishing, circulating or causing to be published or circulated such charge without notifying the other candidate 15 days beforehand would be fined $1,000, imprisoned a year or both.

Congressman McClintic, a good Democrat from Oklahoma, is convinced that Secretary of the Navy Wilbur is a horrible example of something or other. He believes that when an old grad of the naval academy is made secretary of the navy to run the navy with numerous other grads, the net result is just so much more bureaucracy and very little added efficiency.

So McClintic has introduced a joint resolution in the House which provides that "hereafter no person who is a graduate of the United States Military Academy or the United States Naval Academy shall be appointed as secretary of war or secretary of the navy. Any appointment made in violation of this act shall be void." Although Wilbur is an Annapolis man, Secretary of War Davis was graduated from Harvard.

"Federal prisoners now number 19,000 as against 8,500 in 1917, and some 10,000 are boarded out in county jails or other local prisons," says Congressman Boylan of New York. "The three United States penitentiaries at Atlanta, Leavenworth and McNeil Island are overcrowded by more than 100 per cent of normal capacity, causing great congestion and grave difficulties of administration and discipline.

"Federal prisoners awaiting trial or serving short sentences are confined in more than 500 county jails, many or most of them ancient, worn-out, insanitary and overcrowded. The Department of Justice has increasing difficulty obtaining accommodations for prisoners at all.

So Boylan has a resolution providing for a thorough investigation of conditions.

ASPIRIN

You doubtless depend on Aspirin to make short work of headaches, but remember that it's just as dependable an antidote for many other pains! Neuralgia? Many have found real relief in a Bayer Aspirin tablet. Or for toothache; an effective way to relieve it, and the one thing doctors are willing you should give a child—of any age. Whether to break up a cold, or relieve the serious pain from neuritis or deep-seated rheumatism, there's nothing quite like Bayer Aspirin. Just make certain it's genuine; it must have Bayer on the box and on every tablet. All druggists, with proven directions.
